The wedding will take place the home of the bride's father, Mr. Abaer McKinley, at Somerset, Pa. Mr. Baer is a giant young mountaineer, standing 6 feet 2. He is an allround athlete, a daredevil on horseback and can spar in a way to provoke the admiration of such masters as Messrs. Corbett and Fitzsimmons. He is a strenuous young man and just the sort of fellow to take a woman's heart by storm. That's the way he won Miss McKinley, and it all happened during one of many drives along the pic-aid to be due in part to the uppromisng manner in which the campaign is opening, placing on him many burdens and much work that he had expected to avoid. He had divided up the work among bureaus and sub-committees in such a way that he had few matters of detail to attend to. This subdivision has not worked well, and on top of that has developed the most surprising apathy and indifference to appeals for assistance by business men known since the campaign of 1802.

Senator Ingalls's illness dated from March, 1829, when, at Washington, his throat began troubling him. He was treated by several specialists, but reselved no relief, and on their advice returned with his family to Atchison. At home he grew no better.

Ten months ago he sought another change in climate, travelling through New Mexico and Arizona. He was still able to write occasionally for the news-

On the advice of his physicians he decided to remain in New Mexico. Mrs. Ingails went immediately to Las Vegas. On Aug. 14 she telegraphed her sons Ellsworth and Sheffield that their father was sinking. They arrived in time to see him before he died.
